COMMENCEMENT.

Colorado College Graduation Exercises for 1894.

GOV. L. BRADFORD PRINCE.

The Ex-Governor of New Mexico Delivered an Able Address—Orations of the Two Graduates—Interesting College Matters.

The crowning event of commencement week occurred yesterday morning in the college chapel at 10 o'clock. The annual commencement exercises of Colorado College took place before a large audience at that hour. The chapel was handsomely decorated with plants and college colors, and made a very handsome show. President Slocum had charge of the exercises which were opened by an invocation by Rev. D. P. Thurber of Newton, Mass. The special chorus, which has been in training under Mrs. Tucker, distinguished itself in Gounod's "Praise Ye the Father." They reflected great credit on their instructor.

There were two graduates this year. Mr. George Kinsley Olmsted of the graduating class delivered the first oration, his subject being, "A True Reformer." Mr. Olmsted has a pleasant voice, and appears very well upon the platform. He began by describing a scene in Dublin in which were seen upon a balcony the Reformer, Percy Bysche Shelley and his wife. They were engaged in the throwing out pamphlets and trying to stir up the Irish people to a sense of the religious wrongs committed against them, to arouse them to throw off the tyranny of the church. The speaker passed on to discuss Shelley's views of religion, and showed that he was not the Atheist which many casual readers believed him to be, but a far-seeing radical. Even in his youth, with all his impulsiveness, Shelley was not wholly deficient in stability of character. He had a profound religious nature, and one in which a distinct growth is noticed, until finally he had reached in all but form the essential truth of Christianity. We cannot deny a God in his creed because it was all God. Actuated by the highest motives he attacked the church that he might break the chains of bigotry and intolerance which bound her. He had an intense devotion to that which stands for highest truth, sacred justice and purest love. He taught the measureless importance of one spirit to another. That man should be devoted to the realization of goodness and beauty, that society should be free, pure and unselfish, and that sacrifice for humanity is the only object in life worthy of the true man.

At the conclusion of the oration Miss Oma Fields delighted the audience by a piano solo entitled "Die Forelle," by Schubert-Heller.

The second oration was delivered by Mr. William Luther Tibbs, the other member of the senior class. He took for his subject, "A Chorus of Faith." With Mr. Tibbs's oratorical powers the city is well acquainted. It is needless to say that he was up to his usual standard. He spoke of the desire inherent in man for that something called religion; and of how every race bowed down in worship of something or other. All these united upon adoration and reverence to a supreme being, a Father. Back of every creed, behind all dogma unity is found not so much in what they know of Him as in the aspiration of the race feeling after God if they may find Him. Again in the faith of men in their father is this unity shown. The followers of Buddha, of Confucius, of Christ, have all had strong faith in God. In the third respect are the religions of the world one. It is in religious motives. The stream of right conduct is ever found to have its source in the springs of love. Honesty, justice, purity will be the outcome of the soul born of love. In conclusion the speaker alluded to the value of the World's parliament of religions, and said henceforth the question will be not so much what you believe as "do you believe." The speakers in that parliament had learned their truths from different masters, but all was blended into one harmony that embodied and re-echoed the one theme—God found by faith, worshipped and served in love.

Mrs. H. H. Seldomridge then gave a delightful rendition of "The Angel's Serenade." She was accompanied on the violin by Mr. M. O. Barnes, and on the piano by Miss Oma Fields.

As Governor Prince of New Mexico, the orator of the occasion, was delayed by washouts on the railroads, President Slocum gave his statement of the work of the school for the year before the address instead of after, as was intended at first. He made a general statement about the buildings, and especially those built during the year. He stated that the sum of $36,...00 had been donated to the college during the year. Of this amount about $3,053 had been given for the library in addition to over 1,000 volumes of books. This has been received since March 1. He also said that at the meeting of the trustees the old faculty had been re-elected to their positions, and that the trustees had decided to add the new department of fine arts, and had called Miss Hoffman to the charge. He spoke of the further intentions and plans of the trustees in regard to the future of the college, and also about the group of buildings which are to be put on the grounds, and of which Colburn library is the first. The physical culture department is also to be carried on to a greater extent, and a suitable instructor will be found for this department. He also announced the honorary roll for the year as follows: High honors to Misses Winona Bailey of Leadville and Ethel Gandy of Colorado Springs, of the class of '00. Also to two special students, Anna S. Bock of Foxcroft, Maine, and Anna Pearl Cooper of Colorado Springs.

Honors, class of '94, George K. Olmsted of Hartford, Conn., and William L. Tibbs of Smithfield, Pa.; class of '96, Frank S. Bayley of Denver; class of '97, Charles E. Heiser of Colorado Springs, Fannie J. Bailey of Denver; to special students, Horace F. Lunt of Colorado Springs, Henry J. Olmstead of Washington Heights, Ill.

The freshman Latin prize was awarded to Milnor Roberts of Colorado Springs.

Ex-Governor Prince of New Mexico, having arrived, was introduced. He is a very distinguished-appearing gentleman, and a very pleasing speaker. In opening his address the Governor congratulated President Slocum, the faculty and trustees on the advancement of this pioneer institution in Colorado. The address in full will be found in another part of this paper.

At the close of the Governor's address Miss Evelyn Cooper of Burlington, Wis., gave a violin solo which was one of the best of the musical selections on the programme. This was Miss Cooper's first public appearance, and she made a most pleasing impression.

President Slocum, in a few fitting words, presented the diplomas to the graduates, which conferred upon them the degrees of Bachelor of Philosophy. On behalf of the trustees he then conferred upon the Hon. L. Bradford Prince the degree of Doctor of Laws, saying that the college had always been most careful in conferring degrees, and this was the first degree of the kind ever conferred on anybody by the college.

The exercises came to a close by a prayer and benediction by Rev. C. Philip Washburn of St. Stephen's church.

The class this year consists of two members only, namely, Mr. William Luther Tibbs of Smithville, Pa., and Mr. George Kinsley Olmsted of Hartford, Conn. Although the class lacks in quantity, it makes up in quality. The class motto, being translated, means "The end will show."

President's Reception.

From 4 to 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon the president gave a reception to the public. Friends began to gather soon after the appointed time, and continued coming until near the close. The reception was another of the pleasant ones which President Slocum has been in the habit of giving, and was enjoyed greatly by all. Refreshments, including ices and cake, were served, the young ladies having them in charge and making excellent waitresses. It was hard to refuse such earnest requests from the pretty maidens. The reception was a very suitable and enjoyable ending for commencement week.

General Notes.

Mr. H. S. Murdoch, the genial librarian, left for his old home in Mississippi last night.

President Slocum delivers the address of welcome to the convention of the Y. P. S. C. E.'s to-night.

Professor Atherton Noyes has been granted a leave of absence and will start on a trip on the continent next fall.

The students who came back from Cripple Creek, where they went as deputies, are beginning to relate their exploits. They will soon be excellent "yarn spinners."

It will be seen above that a department of fine arts is to be added next year. This is a department that will add greatly to the college, and the one who is called to this department is excellently suited for it. Miss Hoffman has had private classes in her studio at the college for some time.

The Collegian has been somewhat delayed this month, in order to get in an account of commencement week. It will be out soon, under the management of Mr. Henry J. Olmsted. All who wish a copy of this edition may get one by leaving their address with him.

Professor M. C. Gile left with his party for the East last night. The party contains a number of the professors and students. They left over the Rock Island road at 8:30 o'clock for Chicago, where the party will scatter and go to their respective homes.

REMINISCENCES OF THE WAR.

Paying the Deputies—A Dinner to General Adams.

Everything seems quiet in Cripple Creek, and the mines are gradually resuming. At this end things are very quiet. Yesterday Treasurer McCreery continued to pay off the deputies, and it will take another day to complete the work. Mr. McCreery has paid out $24,000 so far in wages to the deputies, and the sum will reach $30,000 before all are paid. The men stood in line before the court house all day. The merchants reaped a harvest as the men nearly all had purchases to make.

It was stated yesterday that General Brooks would send down a batch of prisoners to-day, who have kindly consented to give themselves over to justice. They will walk down, as the Midland road is said to have refused transportation to the militia men again. The railroad has never been paid for past services for the militia, and they do not fancy train stealers either with or without uniforms, so the militia and their "prisoners" will walk. There was also a rumor that the captured members of the pleasant little pedestrian picnic will be accompanied by 250 of their friends and late associates, who are coming down to see that they get "fair play."

Last evening at the Antlers hotel there was a very pleasant reunion. The 13 brave cavalrymen who rode with General Adams into Cripple Creek Thursday afternoon gave the General a dinner. The dinner was served in the private dining room, and the following were present: General Charles Adams, W. G. Doubleday, Hugh Williams, Mr. Wallace, Mr. Sheets, Alex Strachan, Tom Strachan, Mr. Glasspool, B. F. Scribner, Lieutenant William Henderson and Frank Finlay. Mr. F. J. Steinmetz was a guest of the cavalrymen also. The menu was elaborate, and included every delicacy of the season, and the dinner was served in excellent style. Mr. Doubleday acted as toast master, and filled the responsible position to the satisfaction of all. The experiences of the cavalrymen among the "red necks" was recounted with gusto and toasts were drunk to all who had anything to do with the movement. It was a very delightful evening, and was much appreciated by General Adams.

The liar for the Denver Times at camp, who did some of the most accomplished, artistic prevaricating that disgraced the Denver papers during the late unpleasantness, is still keeping his hand in. Last night the Times had a dispatch to the effect that the deputies while in camp broke the cross off of the Catholic church. That was a lie pure and simple, and it is only a sample of what has filled those papers from first to last.

ANOTHER TRAIN STOLEN.

Illinois Coxeyites Appropriate a Fast Freight.

Springfield, Ill., June 13.—Official information was received here at 4 p. m. to-day that a fast freight train on the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis consolidated railway had been forcibly seized at Fairfield by a band of 50 men calling themselves Coxeyites. The train was en route from St. Louis to Louisville, and the men demanded passage to the latter place. Bluford Wilson, solicitor for the road, went before Judge Allen in the Federal court, and made affidavit to the above facts, also swearing that the mayor of Fairfield had been applied to for aid to rescue the train, but refused, and that the sheriff of the county was absent from Fairfield. As the road is under the receivership of James H. Wilson and E. O. Hopkins, Judge Allen at once issued an order directing United States Marshal Brinton to proceed to Fairfield and take such measures as are necessary to rescue the train from the 'Wealers. Deputy United States Marshal Westfall has gone to Fairfield and should he require assistance will swear in deputies there.

McNamara Not Guilty.

Kansas City, Mo., June 13.—Judge Broaddus called for trial at Liberty this morning, the case of the State against J. V. McNamara, a traveling anti-Catholic lecturer, who styles himself "Bishop of the Reformed Catholic Church," charged with falsely accusing the Rev. Father Lillis of Kansas City of crime. The trial was finished, and the case given to the jury at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

At 3:35 the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. McNamara received the verdict without the least emotion, apparently having expected it.

Jerry Simpson Better.

Washington, June 13.—Information today from Berkley Springs, W. Va., reports Representative Jerry Simpson of Kansas rapidly recovering health.

WOOL'S TURN NOW.

Senate Tariff Tinkers Consider That Industry.

THERE IS NOTHING TO HOPE FOR.

A Question Between Little and Nothing at All—Senator Quay Continues His Speech—The Indian Bill Passed in the House.

Washington, June 13.—The second day's debate on the wool schedule was opened to-day in the Senate by Mr. Sherman (Rep.) of Ohio who made an earnest argument against free wool as a thing that that would result in the destruction of the wool growing industry of the country and would be "the culminating atrocity of the bill." He declared that the pending bill, if it were submitted to the people of Ohio, who were largely interested in wool growing, would not receive the support of one-fifth of the voters. He was followed on the same side of the question by Senators Dubois (Rep.) of Idaho, Stewart (Rep.) of Nevada, Shoup (Rep.) of Idaho, Hansborough (Rep.) of North Dakota, and Mitchell (Rep.) of Oregon.

Mr. Mitchell demanded for the wool grower consideration equal given to the wool manufacturer, whose duties had been cut down half and two-thirds. "Do with the wool grower," he said, "no worse than that." After the delivery of these speeches a discussion was started by Mr. George (Dem.) of Mississippi as to whether, if a duty were placed on wool (to which he did not express any opposition) compensatory duties, additional to those reported by the Finance committee, would have to be given to manufactured goods. That discussion occupied an hour and a half, and was closed by Mr. Frye (Rep.) of Maine, with a passionate appeal for protection to American wool growers.

All the day Mr. Quay (Rep.) of Pennsylvania had been hovering about the chamber ready to go on with the eighth installment of his speech, whenever the supply of talk from other Senators should fail. Occasionally he crossed over to the Democratic side of the chamber and held a conversation with Mr. Jones of Arkansas, and other members of the Finance committee, as though negotiating terms on which he might be willing to wind up his speech. If that were the purpose it must have failed, for half an hour before the usual time of adjournment, he resumed the floor and set out to read another section of his apparently endless speech. The Senate at 6:10 adjourned.

House.

The continued warm weather had a depressing influence upon the House today, and although the Indian Appropriation bill was taken up promptly and held the attention of the whole for four hours, but 11 pages were disposed of. Several slight amendments were made to the text, chiefly in the way of increasing appropriations for the support and civilization of certain tribes.

The chief event of the session was a discussion of the present Indian policy of the government, especially with reference to the education of the children of the red men, in the course of which Mr. Reed (Rep.) of Maine made a brief speech. Mr. Reed argued that if an Indian is educated beyond the reach of the tribe to which he belongs and goes back to that tribe, he meets a great principle, not of Indian nature, but of human nature, which is exemplified at all times and on all occasions. That is the demand for uniformity of thought and action. Hence, said Mr. Reed, the problem so far as the education of a tribe is concerned is the raising of the whole tribe somewhat rather than the raising of a single member of it a good deal.

Mr. Reed's speech held the closest attention of the committee, and received a round of applause at its close.

In the morning hour a Senate bill was passed granting to the Barry hospital of Hot Springs, Ark., a site on the government land in that city not on the springs reservation; House bill to pension the widow of Samuel H. Starr, late colonel of the Fifth New Jersey volunteers, and major of the Sixth United States cavalry; House bill to disapprove the treaty heretofore made to remove the Southern Utes to Utah, and to settle them in severalty or to locate them on the west 40 miles of the present reservation in Colorado and in portions of New Mexico; House bill to amend the act establishing circuit court of appeals so as to permit appeals to be taken from their judgment in cases where receivers are appointed without accompanying writs of injunction.

RECIPROCITY PROTESTS.

Foreigners who Object to Democratic Bad Faith.

Washington, June 13.—The resolution agreed to in the Senate to-day asking the President to inform the Senate what objections had been made by countries with which the United States had entered into reciprocal commercial arrangements or treties under the McKinley bill to the proposed re-imposition of a duty on sugar, is understood to have been based upon representations made to the State Department. The protest made by Baron A. Von Caurma-Jeltsch, the German ambassador, has already been mentioned in these dispatches. Another protest was made by Senor Don Antonio Lazo Arriaga, the Guatemalan minister. He represented to Secretary Gresham, it is understood, that under the arrangement entered into between his country and the United States many citizens of Guatemala embarked in the production of sugar. Now, before they have been enabled to reap appreciable benefits from their investments, re-imposing a duty on the sugar produced by them would be their ruin.

But the most serious protest against the pending legislation has been made by Spain. Information of this, it is reported, has been communicated to the State Department by Minister Taylor. When it was learned in Spain that the Senate had agreed to the sugar schedule, the officials there assumed that it had become law. Immediately the minister for the colonies introduced a bill in the Cortes to submit to a uniform ad valorem duty of 24 per cent. all goods imported into Cuba and Porto Rico from the United States which are now admitted free under the reciprocity arrangement. Should this bill become a law, numerous articles now paying no duty would be subject to a duty of 24 per cent. upon entry into either Cuba or Porto Rico.

Homeopathists Meet.

Denver, June 13.—Delegates to the annual meeting of the American Institute of Homeopathy, which begins a 10-day convention in this city to-morrow, are arriving rapidly from the East and the West. A thousand members will be in attendance. Thursday night the jubilee exercises will occur to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the institute. In connection with the institute will be exhibits of drugs by the pharmacists of the country. An elaborate reception will be held at the Brown Palace hotel on Saturday night, and memorial exercises will occur on Sunday evening at the Central Presbyterian church.

Colorado G. A. Rs.

Aspen, Colo., June 13.—The annual meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic has been delayed in opening by reason of the delays of trains. The encampment was formally organized today. Assistant Adjudant General W. T. May made his report of the progress made by the Department of Colorado and Wyoming, showing accessions of 811, and losses of 778. A reception at Hallam Lakes was tendered the visitors this evening.

The Prendergast Case.

Chicago, June 13.—At a conference today of the lawyers representing the state and Prendergast, it was agreed to have the insanity hearing case called before Judge Payne in the criminal court tomorrow morning. A. S. Trude was at the conference on behalf of the Harrison family. States Attorney Kern said he would inform the court of the stipulation entered into by him and the attorneys for Prendergast to have the case go over to the September term, and ask that such continuance be ordered. If the court refuses to continue the case further the states attorney says he is ready to go to trial at once. The attorneys for the condemned assassin say they are not prepared to go to trail.

A Receiver Asked.

Chicago, June 13.—Attorney General Moloney of Illinois began chancery proceedings before Judge Windes here today for the appointment of a receiver for the Continental Investment and Loan society. State Auditor Gore has made affidavit that the society is insolvent, having Jan. 12 last, liabilities amounting to $216,315 and assets of $181,515. There was a deficit in the assets caused by the extravagant expenditure of money amounting to $31,800. The total deficit in the assets amounted to $45,000. Hight salaries were the principal causes of the insolvency.

Denver's Coxeyites.

Denver, June 13.—The Coxey crowd, made up of unemployed men of the West, who have been here for two weeks, and who lately tried to navigate the Platte, are now at Julesburg, in a restless condition. They were prevented from boarding trains to-day by a posse of United States deputy marshals. The citizens of Julesburg are very anxious to get rid of them. Thirteen boats and 75 men reached Fort Morgan to-day, where they will rest for a few days. It is reported that 700 more from Portland, Ore., will arrive in Denver in a day or two.

Omaha, June 13.—In the United States court here this morning arguments were begun on the Nebraska maximum freight rate law. Attorney General Hastings spoke in favor of the Federal court reviewing the matter back to the state, contending that the Federal court had no right to interfere. The arguments are expected to last several days.

A Priest on Trial.

Nebraska City, Neb., June 13.—Father Corbett, who refused to obey the injunction of court restraining him from conducting services at Palmyra, was placed on trial here to-day. Bishop Bonacum appeared against him, and 18 priests were present to testify in favor of the defendant. The trial will take several days.

Weather Indications.

Washington, June 13.—For Thursday—Fair; slightly cooler; winds becoming northwest.

Life's Decline.—A life-long study of the effects of age upon mental condition and responsibility was made by Professor Geo. M. Beard of New York, who was led to declare that the golden decade of life is between the ages of 30 and 40; the silver decade, from 40 to 50; the iron decade, from 50 to 60; the tin decade, from 60 to 70; and the wooden decade from 70 to 80. He found that 70 per cent. of the work of the world is done before the age of 45. Nearly all the the great systems of theology, metaphysics, and philosophy are the result of work done between 20 and 50 years of age. In animals and plants also middle life is a golden period. Horses live about 25 years, but they are at their best from 8 to 14; while dogs live 9 to 10 years, and are best for hunting purposes from 3 to 6 years. Old age is a period of moral, as well as physical and mental, decline. The changes in the brain from old age much resemble a diseased condition, says Dr. J. J. Caldwell, and death in aged persons is more frequently a process being one of very gradual, incapacitating decline of the mental faculties. An old man may begin to die 10 or 15 years before the actual death of his body occurs; and, like a tree, he may die beginning at the top and going down to the trunk. Moral failure may appear in peevishness, avariciousness, meanness, quarrelsomeness, sensuality, revengefulness, or in other ways. For examples of such effects we are referred to the lives of such men as Demosthenes, Cicero, Sylla, Charles V., Louis XIV, Frederick of Prussia, Napoleon, Voltaire, Dr. Samuel Johnson, Cromwell, Dean Swift, Milton, Lord Bacon, Webster, Horace Greeley, and Ruskin.

Color Vision.—In a recent Royal Institution lecture, Captain Abney, F. R. S., explained that the Young-Helmholtz theory of color perception—the one perhaps most generally accepted—supposes that the normal eye receives the three fundamental sensations of red, green and violet. Any color—except, possibly those at the extremities of the spectrum excites all these sensations. The color green, for instance, especially excites the sensation green, while it also excites to some extent the sensations of red and violet. The color-blind comprising about 3 per cent. of mankind, lack the perception of one of the sensations, which is usually red. A few persons, also, are wanting in two of the sensations, and have therefore monochromatic vision the color perceived being usually violet, but green in one case known to the lecturer. Persons who see only red are very rare if they exist. With very faint illumination, all persons have monochromatic vision, and this explains why colors are seen so imperfectly by moonlight. The color-blind eye, besides being unable to perceive all colors, is incapable of estimating the brightness of colors as it appears to the normal eye.

LABORERS UNITE.

A Union Formed of Two Great Associations.

A DIVISION STILL REMAINS.

The Knights of Labor and the American Railway Union are Opposed by the Federation of Labor and the Brotherhood.

Chicago, June 13.—The coalition of the American Railway Union and the Knights of Labor was effected at to-day's session of the first annual convention of the Railway Union. The first steps were taken toward an offensive and defensive alliance of these two great labor organizations with an effective strength of 350,000 men, each founded upon the principle of including in its membership laboring men of all classes. Opposed to this great confederation of laboring men are the American Federation of Labor, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Firemen and all kindred orders working on the class organization basis. There is every prospect of war to death between the two factions of organized labor. Each has within the last few months made vigorous attacks upon the other, and the radical differences in their principles is likely to make the fight for supremacy a lively one. The American Railway Union now has 425 local unions, with 125,000 men and is growing at the rate of 2,000 a day, or 120 local organizations a month. The Knights of Labor has shown new life since the election of Grand Master Sovereign, and will gain additional strength from this alliance. The recent conference of the representatives of various labor organizations at St. Louis, looking to some plan of confederation or co-operation was a failure. The fight between the American Railway Union and its opponent, the American Federation of Labor and the Brotherhoods made its appearance early in the conference. While the Railway Union was not represented the grand masters of the brotherhoods attacked its methods and principles, and declared their adherence to the plan of strict class organization of labor. The Knights of Labor, however, voted as a unit in favor of the American Railway Union idea.

Grand Master Sovereign arrived in this city to-day from St. Louis, and was present at this morning's session of the American Railway Union convention. Speeches were made by President Debs and Vice-President Howard, and the work of electing the committees was begun. Just before recess Grand Master Sovereign asked permission to address the convention in executive session in the afternoon, and this courtesy was accorded him. He made an urgent appeal for the unification of the two great bodies of organized labor. He outlined the objects and methods of the Knights of Labor and the Railway Union, showing that they were working on about the same lines, and that their alliance would be of great benefit to all the members of each order. The Knights of Labor, Mr. Sovereign said, were heartily in favor of the closer association of the organizations; he hoped that some action would be taken by the convention with this object in view.

Mr. Sovereign's speech was received with demonstrations of approval, and a committee was appointed to draw up resolutions expressing the sentiment of the convention on this subject. As a result of their deliberations the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It is obvious that the coalition of labor organizations is the imperative demand of the times; and,

Whereas, The Knights of Labor and the American Railway Union are founded upon the same principles of eternal right justice and the common brotherhood of men, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the sentiment of the American Railway Union in convention assembled as voiced by its committee be that the American Railway Union does hereby tender to the Knights of Labor its hearty alliance in all movements brought about for the elevation and benefit of the laboror, and be it further

Resolved, That we express these sentiments that the whole laboring world may know that two of the greatest labor organizations that it has ever known, viz: the Knights of Labor and the American Railway Union, have affiliated and joined their interests for the purpose of placing the members of both organizations in a close bond of harmony to the best interests of labor; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be tendered the general executive board of the Knights of Labor forthwith.

Leaders of the two orders believe that this means the ultimate consolidation of the Knights of Labor and the American Railway Union, though this is not likely to be brought about for several years. They will, however, work together in close sympathy under the present organizations.

No more business of importance was transacted at to-day's session of the convention. The election of the committees will be resumed to-morrow and the convention will get down to work.

Colorado's Coal Plentiful.

Denver, June 13.—The coal supply continues ample in spite of the troubles throughout the State. The miners at Spring Gulch returned to work to-day. At Crested Butte to-day 300 miners struck to secure a return to the scale of three years ago. It is thought they will go back to work in a day or so.

Striking Miners Go Raiding.

Braddock, Pa., June 13.—About 1,000 strikers employés of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, went on a raid to-day. One party started towards Pittsburg. Others attacked miners working in pits near Wilmerding, where it is reported several men were badly injured.

Mines Refuse Compromise.

La Salle, Ill., June 13.—At a mass meeting of miners from Oglesby, Peru and La Salle it was resolved to accept nothing less than last year's mining prices. Resolutions were also adopted denouncing the Columbus delegates and demanding the resignation of President McBride and others who were parties to the compromise agreement.

Danville Discusses.

Danville, Ills., June 13.—There was a conference here to-day of coal operators to discuss the terms of settlement. The Consolidated company was the only one not represented. The miners would not make any proposition until they had heard from the Clinton, Ind., miners, although they agreed to accept 5 cents a ton less than the Clinton men. The latter are still out.

A Mass Meeting at Farmersville.

Pana, Ills., June 13.—There will be a mass meeting of miners and farmers to-morrow night at Farmersville, two miles from the strikers' camp. The chief attraction will be President Crawford of the Illinois union, who is also the Populist candidate for Congress in this district. The affair is to be advertised as a public gathering, although it is expected the Columbus compromise will be condemned. It is reported that 170 strikers from Wanneo and Taylorville are on the way to join the camp of strikers in Pope's grove. Fully 300 strikers have passed Taylorville since last night bound for this city and advices from Decatur are to the effect that 400 miners are marching from that district in the same direction. The mayor is determined to disperse any gathering in the city.

Decatur Miners Will Work.

Decatur, Ills., June 13.—The miners here decided at a meeting held last night to return to work next Monday, but it is believed the coal company will refuse to employ the 400 men who joined the strike movement. The business men of the city have been united in refusing credit to the miners while on a strike.

FIRE AT PANAMA.

A Large Number of Buildings Were Destroyed.

Panama, June 13.—A fire which broke out this afternoon has already destroyed one hundred houses and is endangering fully a quarter of all the buildings in the city. A high wind is spreading the flames. At 6 o'clock the fire was not under control on any side. Families living near the burning quarters are panic stricken. Scores of them are trying to move their portable goods, but the confusion and excitement are so great that they can find no workmen to help them.

Sealing Poachers Captured.

Seattle, June 13.—Advices of June 3rd from Sitka contain the announcement that the Mohican, flagship of the Bering sea patrol fleet, arrived there that day after cruising five days around Kodiak islands. On the third day the warship spied a vessel near the shore which at once put on all sail in an attempt to escape. After the Mohican had sent two shots from the Hotchkiss guns across the schooner's beam she hove to. It was found to be the Volunteer from Seattle. Arms and implements ready for use in sealing were found. These were seized and the Volunteer ordered to Sand Point to await the close of the season. The Mohican had a similar experience next day with the schooner George R. White of Seattle.

Millers' National Association.

Chicago, June 13.—The annual convention of the Millers' National association commenced this morning at the Grand Pacific hotel in this city. President C. B. Cole of Chester, Ills., called the delegates to order. There was such opposition to the passage of a resolution favoring the anti-option bill that it was withdrawn. A resolution was adopted favoring Senator Washburne's bill for reciprocity in agricultural products with South America.

Bankers' Meeting.

Des Moines, June 13.—The annual meeting of the National Bankers Association began in this city to-day. National Bank Examiner McHugh delivered an address on "The Lessons of 1893." He stated that the year resulted in benefit by putting banking on a legitimate basis.

CRIPPLE CREEK.

Latest News from El Paso's Great Gold Camp.

Special to The Gazette.

Cripple Creek, June 13.—About 200 of the militia boys will escort twenty-five prisoners to Colorado Springs to-morrow and then go to their homes. This will leave 250 still on Bull hill to keep peace.

A considerable amount of second class ore will be shipped to the cyanide mill to-morrow from the Jack E.

Worsham, Clark & Co., lessees on the World's Fair, a claim situated near the Sweet property north of Mound City, have opened a small streak of ore from which they expect something good.

On the Puzzler, the adjoining claim, a vein which was only three inches wide at the surface, has opened out at a depth of thirty feet to fifteen inches which runs from $30 to $130.

Chambers, Clark & Co., lessees on the Sweet mine, are reported to be in a good body of ore, some of which runs thirty ounces gold to the ton.

Only One Victim.

The battle of Cow mountain, last night has a record of one victim, although there were at least two hundred shots fired on the deputies on Thursday morning as they rode down that valley after the horses. The one victim was the faithful horse rode by the undaunted General Charles Adams. The horse was the property of John Kerr of this city. After carrying General Adams to the thickest of the fight the horse was struck by a bullet, fired by one of the miners, in the breast. At first it appeared to be hardly a scratch and the General rode the beast that evening with the twelve cavalrymen on that dangerous trip to Cripple Creek. After his return the horse became stiff and yesterday it was condemned and paid for by the county. It is said that the horse will have to be shot, as its breast bone was badly shattered by the bullet which struck it last Thursday.

Capturing the Fort.

General Brooks and the militia boys are having a great time at Altman and the whole aspect at present resembles an annual encampment. Yesterday General Brooke had his entire command out taking a few lessons in maneuvering. The exciting movement was the storming and capture of Fort Bull Hill. Spectators at Altman are profuse in praise of the manner in which the guardsman performed the feat. The artillerymen were also put through their paces, but the altitude told heavily on the horses, and was not long continued.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gross of 324 South Conejos street, last evening entertained the members of Company F of the deputies. This was the company of colored men under command of Captain Powers and was one of the best drilled and most daring in camp. There was dancing, with music, singing and refreshments and a jolly good time generally. The boys are under many obligations to Mr. and Mrs. Gross.

Last evening while Judge E. A. Colburn was driving to his ranch east of the city the bit to the horse's bridle broke and the animal ran away. As the carriage entered the stable door Judge Colburn was thrown out and his head struck a post. He received a severe cut, but his injuries were not serious.

Dr. Bennett, the veterinary surgeon, left last evening for a trip of several days to Cripple Creek.

James Simpson has purchased a part of the fruit stock of the Kopf fruit store, which is to be closed.

The Athletics and the High school baseball club will play the postponed game on Saturday at 2 p. m.

THE COAL STRIKE SETTLEMENT.

In this city we have been so occupied with the strike at Cripple Creek that we have not been able to pay much attention to a strike extending over a far wider area, and affecting almost every State in the Union—the strike of the miners of bituminous coal. For a month past this strike has been going on, and in every State in the Union in which coal is mined, it has led to violence and law-breaking.

There were reasons, in many places, why the coal-miners should be dissatisfied with the treatment they had received. In some places they were paid in scrip, redeemable only at the company stores. In other places, they were not paid at all, or were paid in such small instalments, and with so much irregularity, that they could not count on the future. In such cases as these, the miners certainly had a right to stop work. Up to that point, public sentiment was with them, and supported their action.

But the strikers were not content with stopping work and demanding a redress of their grievances. They began, in various parts of the country, to destroy the property upon which they had been working. They forcibly resisted the officers of the peace who attempted to preserve order. They made themselves armed insurrectionists against the authority of the State.

When the matter had proceeded as far as this, the Governor of every State in which violence had broken out, with the single exception, we believe, of Colorado, ordered out the militia to aid the officers of the peace. Public opinion, which had been largely with the strikers in their peaceable demands, turned against them, and their leaders began to perceive that the strike was destined to fail. It was on this account that the conference was held at Columbus between the operators and the leaders of the strike, which resulted in the compromise the terms of which have already been published in The Gazette. That compromise provides for the payment of the present scale of wages until Sept. 1st, and for an increase of ten cents per ton after that date.

The settlement of the affair on this basis is rather remarkable in itself, but it is not nearly so remarkable as the statement which it has called forth from the leaders of the strike. That statement was printed in yesterday's Gazette; but it is so noteworthy that we venture to repeat a small part of it.

"As long as the miners engaged in the suspension observed this policy of peace and order there was no doubt of their ultimate triumph. There has been at no time nor can there be any reason for setting law and the authorities at defiance and indulging in violent demonstrations to redress imaginary wrongs. That violence has been committed and law in other ways disregarded there can be no doubt, but that our men have been so outrageously lawless as press reports indicate, we deny. Any violation of law, however small, supplanted by the maliciously exaggerated press reports, proved sufficient to change and turn against us a public opinion never too friendly toward the laboring men when in conflict with corporate greed. Your president, recognizing these facts, and being powerless to enforce discipline in our ranks, believing that the danger point had been reached, and being unwilling to assume or bear the responsibility for acts over which he had no control, called a meeting of the national strike committee in accordance with the instructions of the last national convention."

We have said that this is a remarkable statement: it is remarkable in at least two respects, first, that the leaders of a strike should have had the good sense and cool judgment to recognize the situation, and the courage to act upon it; and second, and most important, that public sentiment should have manifested itself in so unmistakable a manner that there could be no doubt of the result. That the officers of the United Mine-workers should have acted as they did is greatly to their credit, and has produced a favorable impression which will stand them in good stead in the future. That the lawlessness and violence of some of the strikers should have led to a failure of the strike, is a welcome proof of the soundness of the American people at large.

Sometimes thoughtful men incline to doubt whether virtue is not so far departed from the people of this country that they are rapidly becoming incapable of self-government, but one instance like this should go far to reassure us. Notwithstanding the tremendous influx of foreigners many of whom are against all government—an influx that has been going on almost unchecked for a quarter of a century—we believe that the majority of our people are still Americans, with all that the word implies of capacity for self-government and of respect for law and order.

Many European observers who are watching this country believe that the real trial of our institutions is just beginning, and they make no secret of their belief that we shall before long have here a condition of anarchy from which escape shall only be possible by "the man on horseback." That has been the history of almost every country on the globe, and unless we have in this country more intelligence and more civic virtue than those countries, there is no good reason why the programme that is so familiar in history should not be repeated here. But we believe that as this government is a new experiment, although it has already endured through the trials of a century, so the people of America are a new kind of people, of a different, and on the average, of a higher political character than any other people that has ever existed in the world; and because we believe this, we believe that our institutions will stand, even though we may be threatened with new dangers and greater ones than we have had to encounter before in all our national history.

Our leading editorial this morning was written before the delivery of the commencement address by Governor Prince. We make no apology because in sentiment it so closely resembles that address, but rather esteem it a matter for pride and congratulation. We wish that every commencement orator in the land would take the same topic as Governor Prince, and treat it in the same way.

To-morrow afternoon a public reception will be held for Mrs. Foster at The Antlers pavilion, to which every woman in the city is cordially invited. On that occasion Mrs. Foster will speak to women especially, and every new voter should take this opportunity of meeting personally and listening to the first woman orator in the country.

For the rest of this week, the State convention of the Y. P. S. C. E will occupy the time and thoughts of many of our people. Certainly they could be occupied in no more profitable manner.

Make your arrangements to spend tomorrow evening at the opera house.

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS.

Delivered by ex-Gov. L. Bradford Prince, LL.D., of New Mexico.

There is always a pleasure and exhilaration in addressing young men, which is not afforded by any other audience, not only because they are receptive and full of high resolve, but because of their prospective power and influence in the communities in which they live. One feels that if he can say a word that will influence their ideas or their careers, the effect may endure through long years to come.

And so I esteem it a rare pleasure as well as a high honor to have this opportunity of addressing the young men of this college, those about to graduate and those but little behind them in the journey of life; and more strongly even than the honor I feel the responsibility which the position entails, that responsibility which is the universal accompaniment of opportunity.

And, hence, instead of pursuing any more ambitious train of remark, I propose, in the plainest manner possible, to speak to you as educated and yet practical men, a few earnest and practical words, as to what I conceive to be one of the most important duties which you owe to your God, your country, and yourselves.

It is to your duty as American citizens that I wish to call your attention.

The numbers whom I have thus the privilege of addressing may not be very large; but influence is not counted by numbers. It is quality, not quantity, that rules in this world.

A pound of gold excels in value tons of sand or even useful coal. A Franklin, a Morse or an Edison, has done more for the world's progress than a whole generation of millions in India or China; the genius of one Napoleon made France the master of all Europe; the eloquence or the wisdom or the tact of a single man to-day makes him the leader of thousands; in every community it is talent and education which control mere force of numbers.

Some of you, who expect to enter the legal profession, may remember that in the law a "non-user" is as bad as a misuser; and so in every day life, the man who makes no use whatever of the talents, education, and influence which he possesses, is as culpable, except in degree, as the one who misuses them.

The parable of the talents is as true to-day as when it was first spoken, and you will recollect that it was for hiding his talent, for not using it at all, (not for its perversion or misuse) that the unfaithful servant was consigned to outer darkness.

There never was a country where the cultivated classes were more distinctly called on to meet their obligations and responsibilities as citizens, than in this United States of ours.

And, there has very rarely been a time when there was a greater need for the full and conscientious performance of the duties of the citizen than now. It is true that we have passed through the great crisis in the history of our nation—in the days of the rebellion—and we have passed it successfully because the whole body of the people was stirred, and the momentous character of the occasion brought into the service of the country the best and purest, the most noble and unselfish elements of our population.

That was the most momentous era in the world's history; the one above all others since the creation which the lover of his race would have selected if he could have chosen the time in which to live. For then, not simply the life of a great nation, but the fate of free institutions throughout the world, were in the balance. Down to that time it had been held by monarchists that a republican government, strong as it might be to resist foreign foes, was powerless when assailed by treason and rebellion among its own people, and consequently could have no real stability and permanence; and all history had verified the assertion. The final decision was left for the great republic of the west when assailed by the most gigantic rebellion the world had ever seen. The issue, then, was far greater than the fate of our own country, for it involved the existence of free institutions among mankind for long centuries to come, and thus was the most glorious conflict in which to do or die that this earth has seen.

But the very vastness of the issue, and its clear cut distinction between right and wrong, made it comparatively easy for every right-thinking man to see his duty and the glory which he might earn. Fame only from the special gallantry or faithfulness with which it was performed. The causelessness and wickedness of the Rebellion and the almost inconceivable selfishness of the leaders who were willing that hundreds of thousands should perish and anguish and desolation cover the whole land in order that their miserable ambition should be gratified; and on the other hand the nobility of loyalty and truth, and the glory of the nation as the bulwark of freedom, left no room for doubt or hesitation in any patriotic breast, and it did not require high education in order to see and do the right.

But the issues that are upon us now, require not only patriotism but the highest order of intelligence and education among those who have to deal with them. The questions are comparatively new to us and are fraught with great and unknown evils. The condition of the country to-day, shows how strangely its peace and prosperity are menaced by dangers, unthought of, even, a decade ago. To meet them we need the highest statesmanship and the most patriotic spirit. More than all, we need general intelligence and loyalty to American institutions, among the people. Yet in this very hour of danger we are more poorly prepared, in the character of our votes, than ever before.

Highest of all in Leavening Power. Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Immigration has brought to our shores an immense concourse of men, utterly unacquainted with free institutions, whose only political duty in their old homes was that of passive obedience, and a few short years gives them an equal voice with ourselves in the government of the nation.

For many years those coming among us from abroad were of a character to add to the strength of the country. But recently the influx has come largely from localities where long oppression has bred a spirit of opposition to law, of anarchy and violence, utterly repugnant to American ideas and subversive of all good government. These bad elements congregate in our great cities; forming communities in themselves, which learn nothing of our institutions, are impossible to be assimilated and Americanized, and remain a constant menace to good government and good order. The magnitude of this danger may be appreciated when we remember that even in Chicago, which some have looked on as a typical American city, less than one-quarter of the people are Americans.

Again, one result of the rebellion was to add to the governing power of the country a vast number of voters, entirely unaccustomed to the exercise of political duties, and necessarily from their past circumstances and lack of opportunity, the most ignorant class on an average, to which a voice in public affairs was ever given.

While time and the education of the new generation have lessened that evil, yet another has grown up around it, and it is now confronted by a far more intelligent but far more dangerous element, which strikes at the very foundation of republican institutions by defiantly destroying the freedom and purity of the ballot box, and practically doing away with the rights of the majority in at least six States of the Union.

As practical men, we must take things as we find them; and the only question for us to answer, and to answer by actions as well as by words, is, what is our duty to the country in view of this vast volume of ignorance and self-interest thus invested with power; what is your duty, young men of the future, who surrounded by more propitious circumstances, have been blessed with education and culture, and hold high standards of honor, towards the country of our birth, of our hopes, of our love?

Clearly, it is to use every power which we possess our education, our talents, our experience in counteracting, or still better, in controlling, this ignorance and demoralization, and in giving a proper direction to the policy of the government; and as a means thereof, to the movements of the parties with which we may be identified.

"Very well!" you say, "but what do you propose?" "Be more explicit and definite." "Do you intend that we should go to primary meetings and attend conventions and hold political office?"

Yes, that is precisely what I mean, within proper limits. I am, of course, not considering your political opinions and convictions, nor to which party you may belong: that is a matter for yourselves alone. But I do most earnestly urge upon you, whatever may be your political sentiments, the duty which you owe, as intelligent and favored American citizens, of using every means in your power, in the recognized methods, to influence public opinion and public action for good.

In our system of politics, the primary meeting is the practical source of all power. If you go to the polls to vote, you are presented with three or four tickets, representing the different parties. Outside of the names thus presented for each office you have no actual choice at all. Now, who designated these names between which you are forced to choose? A convention. And who created the convention? The primary meeting. So, in fact, it is the primary meeting which selects our rulers and decides the policy of the government. The professional politician, the unscrupulous wire-puller, the interested office-seeker, know this well, and it is here that they bring their forces to bear in order to attain their selfish ends. And, as the better classes of citizens are rarely present, they carry their point with little or no difficulty.

If it were not a matter to which experience has long accustomed us we would be utterly amazed at the apathy and inconsistency manifested by intelligent men in this connection. I will venture to say that if you ask the first half dozen of your friends whom you hear loudly discussing the comparative merits of one or another presidential candidate during the national campaign, whether they attended the primary meetings or not, will answer no; at least a majority. And yet that was the only opportunity which was ever to be presented for any practical display of their preferences. They may talk till doomsday, but the only time for action was then. And so it is almost everywhere, alas!

When we see men of standing, of integrity, of talent, of education, men like yourselves, gentlemen, controlling at primary meetings and composing political conventions, we need have no fears for the republic.

"This sounds all very well in a speech," you say, "and is good enough in theory, but it won't work practically. If we went to these meetings we would soon be shoved aside."

Now that is all a mistake. You would not be shoved aside; on the contrary; you would be welcomed. Perhaps a few "of the baser sort" who found their influence gone might grumble; but that would soon end.

Every association in the world prefers to be governed by intelligence and honor if they are attainable. I will venture to say, that there is not a town in the land where the half dozen most respected citizens, men of highest culture and character, would not be received with acclamation, if they would appear and take part in the meetings of either party. The cry is perpetually for men; for the best kind of men.

"But all this," you say, "takes time." Of course it takes time. "And it will be considerable trouble," you say. No doubt it will. Everything in this world, which is worth the doing, does cost time and trouble, and will, I have no doubt, till the dawn of the millennium. Every man in his business and domestic affairs acknowledges this, and we all look suspiciously on enterprises which promise immense returns without any adequate consideration. In this case, the time and trouble expended are a part of the price of citizenship, of free institutions. A person who is one of the people, in a government "of the people, by the people, for the people," must expect to bear his part of the burden. He has no right not to. "The price of liberty is eternal vigilance," and all history confirms the truth of the assertion.

On you, gentlemen, and on such as you, we have to depend for the future of our land. We have to look largely to our young men, those of culture, and honor, and high resolve. That enthusiasm, that love of the true and the noble, that absolute unselfishness, which are characteristic of youth, are elements necessary to the prosperity of a people. And they were never more wanted than to-day. We need enthusiasm, and pure patriotism, and ambition to do great deeds, and forgetfulness of self, when some high object is to be attained. And all these have to be guided by education, and to have effect must be possessed by men of character in their respective communities.

It is a glorious time in which to live, and while I point you to your duties as citizens, I hail you as leaders in the grandest work which has ever been given to man to achieve. In our land to-day is proceeding the great trial of the stability and worth of democratic institutions. With our success they will ultimately become universal; with our failure, the hands will go backward on the dial plate of human progress, hundreds and hundreds of years.

"Humanity with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on our fate."

Let us then manfully determine to do our part in the work; let us resolve that as citizens we will do our whole duty, wherever that duty shall call us. That at the primary meeting, in the convention, at the polls, in our private life, our whole influence shall be used, with whatever party we may work, for the purification of politics, the triumph of principle, the greatest glory and the onward march of the republic.

Thus will the nation as the guide, the example of all the earth, by its success in triumphing over those difficulties which have been fatal to former governments, prove the superiority in peace as in war, in permanence as well as in power of republican institutions; and so hasten by centuries the glorious day when every nation shall be free, when popular government shall be universal, when tyranny and despotism shall be things of the past, and when the great bell of earth's "central city" shall ring out, "Liberty throughout all the land and to all the inhabitants thereof."

New York Stock Market.

New York, June 11.--Money on call has been easy at 1 per cent; last loan at 1, and closing offered at 1. Prime mercantile paper, 3 1-2@4.

Speculation at the stock exchange today was confined almost exclusively to American Sugar and Chicago Gas, the first named ranged between 100 1-2 and 102 7-8, ex dividend of 3 per cent, and closed at 100 7-8. The stock was bought by the shorts on the Havemeyer testimony that the company earned a profit of over ten millions a year for the past three years. Chicago Gas was in demand throughout and a new pool was said to be buying it. The stock moved up from 77 1-8 to 79 ? 1 bid. The general list was characterized by firmness and a higher range of quotations was established. The improvement in the railway list ranged from 1-4 to 1 3-8 per cent. The market closed firm at or about the top figures of the day. Total sales were only 125,373 shares, of which 42,500 were American Sugar, 10,400 St. Paul and 13,000 Chicago Gas.

The bond market was firm. Sales 735,000.

Alix After Nancy Hanks' Record.

In speaking of his great trotting mare Alix recently her owner, Morris J. Jones, said: "I laid out for Alix when I started to race her as a 2-year-old a programme that would take her through her 5-year-old form. Now that her time has expired I have other arrangements for her. She has raced well and earned a place in the list of the champions of the light harness racing world. Now I'm going to see how much speed I can get out of her. She will go against time and the record of Nancy Hanks, but at what tracks I cannot say just now. If she does not beat Nancy's 2.04, then it will be my fault in not conditioning her properly."

"I can cordially indorse Ayer's Hair Vigor, as one of the best preparations for the hair. When I began using Ayer's Hair Vigor, all the front part of my head —about half of it—was bald. The use of only two bottles restored a natural growth, which still continues as in my youth. I tried several other dressings, but they all failed. Ayer's Hair Vigor is the best."—Mrs. J. C. Oscar Wilde's New Play.

The Denver Republican has the following to say about Oscar Wilde's new play, "Lady Windermere's Fan," which will be presented at the opera house next Monday and Tuesday by one of Frohman's best companies: "If there is no astonishing power disclosed in Oscar Wilde's last play, 'Lady Windermere's Fan,' produced at the Tabor Grand last night, there is certainly much that is clever and brilliant. Not often is there heard on the stage such a sparkling dialogue as that which trickles all the way through this little drama of high life. It is full of delicious humor, flashing repartee and that sort of epigram which is Wilde's own above all else."

A WORD WITH YOU.

Two blades of grass where there was one before. That's what our garden hose makes; and that's what Jerry Simpson says is "honest productive effort." Think of it! Velvety lawns, fruitful gardens; refreshened, rarefied atmosphere. This is the picture our garden hose calls up, and makes you feel a fatherly interest in all creation. After the evening meal he gives to the grass and flowers the drink that the skies have denied, supplementing Dame Nature's work, correcting her shortcomings. We can find poetry in garden hose. You can not find profit in cheap garden hose. We sell the most durable garden hose in the world. Don't forget that we are leaders in hose novelties.
